SANDWICHES

When a savvy 18th-century servant layered some meat between two slices of bread for the fourth Earl of Sandwich, who wouldn’t leave the table during a card game, John Montagu created culinary history. Although the British population never sank its teeth into this idea, Americans embraced the concept and found endless variations. Around the time of the American Civil War, sandwiches were being served as a simple supper. By the mid-20th century, the sandwich had become a major mealtime tradition.

The Ice Cream Cone was introduced at the St. Louis World's Fair in 1904. It has remained a favorite to this day where as many as 4,500,000 are sold each year.

Back when Andy Jackson was still in the backwoods of Tennessee, the folks there were sipping carbonated water thanks to a fella named John Mathews. Soda water was known in those days to give you health, vitality and long life. Soda shops popped up all over the country. It wasn’t long until syrup flavorings were added to sweeten the taste. One summer in 1874 a desperate concessionaire who ran out of syrup during the noon rush, scooped ice cream into a glass of bubbly water and the ice cream soda was born. A few years later prohibitionists in Evanston, Illinois, declared soda water intoxicating and outlawed sodas on Sunday. An ingenious drug store operator found a loophole. He left out the soda water and simply served the syrup on the top of ice cream. The result was the world’s first ice cream “Sunday”. The spelling was changed to Sundae when town fathers objected to using the Sabbath’s name. (If your soda hasn’t arrived yet, call your Server.)

The Ice Cream Age
From the Stone Age, to the Iron Age, to the Nuclear Age, to the Ice Cream Age civilization marches on. Today, of course, the craving for ice cream has spread to the four corners of our planet. As a fiddler, Nero was not so hot, but Nero is a hero in the ice cream world.

HISTORY OF FARRELL’S

Farrell’s Rebirth
In 1996, a new company, whose mission is to bring back the heydays of Farrell’s past, acquired Farrell’s. Our organization is staying true to philosophies upon which the original company was founded. Bob Farrell still resides in Portland and runs several successful restaurant chains and conducts speaking engagements. His “Give ‘em the Pickle” presentation has been heard by hundreds of companies nationwide. Bob Farrell is with us each step of the way as we bring Farrell’s into the Twenty First Century. Farrell’s Is Fabulous Fun
What makes Farrell’s Fun?
We think our people make the biggest contribution and we’d like to beat the drum about them. Just take a look around you at the people serving you or creating our fountain fantasies and food festivities. They come from right here in the community which has always been the practice. There have been over 100,000 people who have worked at a Farrell’s over the past thirty years. The other element of the fun are our guests - you. Countless people have celebrated a birthday, met their spouse, or had their first sip of an ice cream soda at a Farrell’s. We want to thank you for letting Farrell’s be a part of your lives and the community. We might have left for a while, but we have moved on.
